Motoring Venture Ends with Bump

Three-year-old Linda Mitchell, 2640 Blanshard, hides her face because her first solo drive in her daddy's car ended disastrously. Curtis Mitchell left Linda alone for a few minutes in the parked automobile, and the little girl inadvertently slipped the emergency brake. The car travelled 100 feet down Blanshard and bumped a parked vehicle, whose brakes held. Damage was slight—except to Linda's feelings.—Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

West Europe 'Free' Market Target

Britain Seeks Trade Allies To Challenge U.S., Russia

Large-Scale Output To Match Giants

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government disclosed Wednesday it is considering co-operation with Western European nations in a "partial free trade area" covering a potential common market of 250,000,000 people.

Harold Macmillan, chancellor of the exchequer, said such a "vast new economic unit could provide the full advantages of large-scale production now enjoyed by the United States and Russia."

Macmillan addressed a press conference on the talks he and Peter Thorneycroft, president of the board of trade, held with Commonwealth finance ministers in Washington last week.

The chancellor said that because of Commonwealth arrangements, Britain could not include raw or manufactured foodstuffs, feeding stuffs, drink or tobacco in any free trade project with continental Europe.

PLANS FLEXIBLE
Britain's plans for the partial free trade area are still in the formative stage, Macmillan said. "There is not a cut and dried plan to which everyone can find a ready answer," he said. "It's a start of plan, but if you don't start you don't get anywhere."

"The government will not be in a position to make final decisions until all these discussions at home and abroad—both Commonwealth and Europe—have gone further."

Macmillan said the trade area he has in mind would cover Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and other members of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation who wished to join.

The OEEC was formed by 17 European nations receiving American financial aid under the Marshall Plan.

Thorneycroft, who attended the press conference, said that if the project went forward, "it might shape the commercial pattern perhaps for a generation or more."

Asked about the position of Commonwealth manufactured goods, Thorneycroft said that Britain would be free, as now, to continue giving them free entry into the British market.

The Commonwealth countries would also continue to be given preference for example India over Japan or Canada over the United States—but over a period of 10 to 15 years they would lose a preference in the British market over a European competitor.

Thorneycroft added that the real interest of the Commonwealth countries in the long run was whether Europe and Britain were prosperous or not.

NO FOODSTUFFS
Explaining the plan further, Macmillan told the press conference: "I said a partial free state area for this reason—we could not, and this is vital, include raw or manufactured foodstuffs, feeding stuffs, drink or tobacco in a free trade area of this kind."

"Commonwealth" farmers' preferential position in the British market must be preserved."

Macmillan emphasized his government has not arrived at a conclusion on the plan, "but we have a responsibility to look for the answer and we shall not shrink at it."

The project might be "a way to reconcile and harmonize apparently conflicting interests and responsibilities."

Sturdy To See Account

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy, who charged former lands minister Robert Sommers with taking bribes while in office, has been given the right to examine Mr. Sommers' bank account to back up his charges.

Mr. Justice H. J. Sullivan of B.C. Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the barrister may look into the former minister's account and those of five firms named in Mr. Sturdy's statement of defence against a slander suit filed by Mr. Sommers.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said Mr. Sturdy will "not have a roving commission, but shall be at liberty to inspect and take copies of any entries in respect to bank accounts of the persons and corporations named."

Besides the Victoria account of the former minister, Mr. Sturdy sought permission to look into the Vancouver accounts of Pacific Coast Services; H. W. Gray, J. M. Gray and Evergreen Lumber Sales Ltd.; C. D. Schultz & Co., and B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

Newcombe vs. Larsen

Elated Dodgers Out to Win Stranglehold

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, still riding the crest of their spectacular pennant victory and a four-game winning streak over the New York Yankees at Ebbets Field, went out today to take a 2-0 stranglehold on the 1956 world series.

Manager Walt Alton nominated 27-game winner Don Newcombe to hurl for the Dodgers against erratic Don Larsen, an 11-5 pitcher during the regular American League campaign, as the odds on the series shifted close to "even money."

The "Broadway line," which had so confidently listed the Yankees as 8-5 favorites before old Sal Maglie's heart-throbbing, 6-3 victory yesterday, today listed New York as a slim 11-10 choice.

The Dodgers demonstrated conclusively in yesterday's opener, played before a crowd of 34,479, including President Eisenhower, former president Herbert Hoover, and five cabinet members, that they're no "tired old team" in this world series. They wracked up the Yankees, who led with 19-game winner Whitey Ford, in precisely the same manner that they won three in a row from them at Ebbets Field last year, and forced manager Casey Stengel into a second-game gamble.

REACH DOWN
For while the Dodgers were going with their nominal ace in 240-pound Newcombe, whose 27-7 record and .794 percentage were tops in the National League this year Stengel reached down for a pitcher whose entire history as a major leaguer hardly nominated him for the job he had to do today.

It was only a year ago that the Dodgers themselves exploded the myth that no team could lose the first two games of a seven-game world series and go on to win it, and yet near the Walla Walla airport there's no getting around the Tuesday night.

fact that the Yankees will be in a desperate position if Larsen doesn't return them winners today.

That would send the series to the Yankee Stadium tomorrow with the Dodgers two games in front and still able to return to their home grounds in fair shape even if they lost every game at the Stadium. For the big question in this series is becoming whether the Yankees can outslug the Dodgers at Ebbets Field.

Blackmail Attempt Charged

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—Three students of Walla Walla College were charged with blackmail Wednesday, accused of attempting to extort $500 from a school official.

Prosecutor Arthur Hawman filed the charges against Gordon S. Rupert, 19, of Greeley, Colo.; Kenneth Lorenz, 19, of Moses Lake, Wash.; and Tom Mathison, 17, of Kingston, Ont. The prosecutor said the three were accused of threatening to send certain information to college authorities and the man's wife unless he left $500 at a spot and go on to win it, and yet near the Walla Walla airport there's no getting around the Tuesday night.

Hide-and-Seek Chase Fails to Find Girl

Burglar Felled By Girl

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four teenagers overpowered a safe cracker who broke into their home here last night while their parents were away.

The 22-year-old thief was taken to hospital by police and later charged with breaking and entering.

He was surprised by the teenagers while he tampered with a safe in the home. One of them, a girl, banged the man over the head with a mirror, knocking him unconscious.

The four sat on the thief until police arrived. One of the youths suffered face cuts in the scuffle.

Man Injured In Accident

A fractured pelvis was suffered by Eli Fry, 721 Cowper, last night in a collision with a car driven by G. E. Isaacson, 2496 Millstream Road.

Police said Mr. Fry was crossing Cowper near Austin after giving directions to another driver on the opposite side of the road.

NEW YORK (UP)—Immigration inspectors failed in a hide-and-seek search of the outbound liner Queen Mary yesterday for the American daughter of a Russian refugee who may have been forced to return to the Soviet Union.

Brushing aside the protests of a Russian embassy official, the six inspectors, acting on a complaint made by the child's American mother in Philadelphia, hunted through the giant ship for Alexis Chwastov, 58, and his daughter, Tatiana, 2, who were known to have boarded the ship before it left its dock at 5 p.m.

The inspectors said they would have removed the child from the ship because she is an American citizen. The search for Chwastov and his daughter, who were absent from their cabin, ended at about 7 a.m., when the inspectors left the ship at the quarantine point at the entrance of New York harbor.

Roland Elliott, director of immigration service for the Church World Service which helped Chwastov enter the U.S. in 1951 as a displaced person, hinted that Chwastov may have been lured back to Russia through a phony letter that his mother was dying.

The father and daughter were last seen entering a cabin occupied by Russians.

Fedor Solomatin, chief of the consular division of the Soviet embassy in Washington, boarded the ship before it sailed to protest the search. He said that under Russian law the child was a Soviet citizen.

Mayor Condemned

Aged Site Rebuff Irritates Labor

Mayor Percy Scurreh and city council were condemned by the Victoria Carpenters' Union last night for changing their minds and not giving property to the Senior Citizens' Campaign Council for a low-rent housing project for aged persons.

The union stand, outlined in a letter to the Victoria Labor Council, was supported by a meeting of the labor group last night "if the facts are as reported."

The letter stated: "A few months ago the mayor was very much in favor of aiding this project, but apparently has changed his mind while seemingly supporting the Kiwanis project that was advanced in the meantime."

"Our membership is of the opinion that this about-face on a very worthy case is deplorable and request the Victoria Labor Council use every means possible to change the minds of our civic body back to its original offer."

John Aubrey, of the retail clerks' union, suggested city council should turn the Harriet Road property over for a "nominal sum."

'Maypole Dance' Anxiety Mounts

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Public anxiety over four months of unattended state business is mounting in leaderless Holland as a cabinet crisis entered its 114th day to become the longest political stalemate in Dutch history.

With political jockeying continuing, there is still no clear sign of an end to the crisis which has left the country without an administration since June.

IN DOLDRUMS
The political life of the nation is in the doldrums. The newly-assembled Parliament, itself awaiting legislation to expand its membership, has adjourned indefinitely.

The Socialists emerged from the June elections as the biggest party, with 1,572,203 votes against the Catholics' 1,315,310 votes. But the difference is narrowed under Holland's system of proportional representation to only one seat. The two big parties have been struggling bitterly for the favor of the various small groups which stand between them.

Arthritis Forum ...

... Free to Public

Medicines Can Deceive

A medicine can appear to work wonders for some rheumatoid arthritis cases and consequently gain a good name, but actually be of little or no use.

This fact is one of many that five doctors can be expected to explain in their discussion of arthritis in all its aspects at the free public medical forum in Central Junior High School at 8 p.m. Oct. 12.

The forum, open to all who want to hear what arthritis and its symptoms are and what modern medical practice can do about it, is being sponsored jointly as a service to the community by the Victoria Medical Society and The Daily Colonist.

In a panel discussion in the first half of the program, the doctors will deal thoroughly, in easy-to-understand language, with the whole problem of arthritis, explaining among other things that doctors can and do test medicines to see if they are helping patients.

In the second portion of the program, the doctors will answer questions about ar-

Heady Chest Challenge

Mayor Bets Toppers City Will Be Top

Mayor Percy Scurreh doesn't think other cities can outdo Greater Victoria in their Red Feather generosity. And he's not going to be outdone, either, in telling about it.

By telephone yesterday from Penticton, where he is attending the annual meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, Mayor Scurreh said he was offering a silk top hat to the mayor of any of five other Western Canadian cities that could beat Victoria in reaching its Community Chest objective.

Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton actually set the race going—ignoring Victoria—by wagering a Stetson hat that his city would reach its objective first. Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver, also steering clear of Victoria, countered by offering a Panama hat "symbolic of Vancouver sunshine" to the mayors of Edmonton, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Regina if their cities could beat Vancouver.

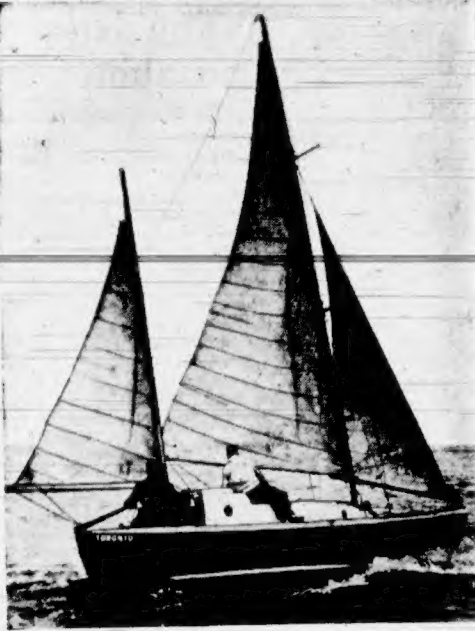

In Penticton, Mayor Scurreh viewed the exchange of challenges, observed the slight to Victoria, and sent this message to the mayors of the five other cities:

"I note that the mayors of Edmonton and Vancouver are wagering Stetson and Panama hats, respectively, that their cities will be first to reach their Red Feather objectives. Their bragging has gained them considerable publicity, but they seem afraid to tackle Victoria."

"I am so certain that Victoria will reach its objective first that I offer this challenge to the mayors of Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Regina: If any of them reach their Red Feather targets before Victoria does, I'll give them a silk top hat."

Victoria's Mayor Percy Scurreh has made himself a bet—five bets, in fact—that his city will beat other Western Canadian cities in reaching its Community Chest goal. And Harry Gladwell (above), campaign chairman, is the man who will win them for him. Loss would cost Mayor Scurreh five silk hats—the topper typifying Victoria's aristocratic status among the cities of the west.—Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.

Family Debts High; Experts Unworried

Are Too Many
Going Into 'Hock'

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UP)—Joe Smith goes his merry way buying the things he wants in that traditional American fashion—"on the cuff."

Millions of Joe Smiths have ranging from $3,000 to $7,500 a year, are excellent credit man-

While virtually everyone agrees that consumer installment loans are a vital adjunct to the U.S. economy, many experts fear too many families are going too deeply into hock.

The fear is that repayments may become a burden, which would require retrenchment in all consumer expenditures. This, some economists hold, could trigger a chain reaction adversely affecting the whole economy.

Other economists say the total debt is not as important as the soundness of the debt or the rate at which families are pyramiding their bills.

Right now, most experts are of the opinion the debt is sound. They point to the low loss ratio on installment loans.

Arthur O. Dietz, president of City Financial Corp., says consumer installment debt was never in sounder condition than at present.

"Studies show that installment debt today is largely concentrated among those who are best able to carry debt—middle or moderately high income brackets," Dietz notes. "This group, with incomes

Four Missing

Building Falls, Six Known Dead

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Six men were known dead and four others were feared lost Wednesday night in the rubble of a partly constructed four-story building which collapsed and buried some 25 construction workers beneath tons of steel and concrete.

At 10 p.m., loudspeakers at the scene intoned the Lord's Prayer and 10 minutes of silence followed while rescuers entered the partly-excavated basement to call for survivors. There were no answers.

Then bulldozers and cranes, designed to be as nearly impregnable against atomic explosions as possible, began to clear the debris.

Fifteen workers were injured, two of them critically. They were taken to two Jackson hospitals.

The inside of the building gave way without warning as a construction gang from Herlihy Mid-Continent Company of Chicago agers and are maintaining an excellent repayment record."

Paul L. Seny, executive vice president of the National Consumer Finance Association, points out that consumers' accumulated wealth in real estate, securities, cash, life insurance and other assets exceeds their liabilities by about $1,000,000,000,000.

Capt. Fred Fender of the U.S. luxury liner sighted little vessel 1,000 miles from Newfoundland Sept. 22. He said it was "bobbing crazily" and although he circled the craft for an hour, saw no sign of life aboard her. Tiller was lashed and foremast shattered. The two Toronto sailors expected to take 45 or 50 days to make crossing.

Smallwood Regime Returned

THE re-election of Premier Joseph Smallwood and a Liberal administration in Newfoundland's general election yesterday had been predicted. The government for one thing created eight new seats in the Legislature, and took all of them at the polls. Premier Smallwood is personally popular as the man who led Newfoundland into the Confederation less than 10 years ago. There had been six vacancies in the House at dissolution, leaving the Progressive Conservatives with the same number of seats in this one, four. The CCF drops out of the new Legislature, Newfoundland's third since the union.

Returned with all of his cabinet, Premier Smallwood will have an overwhelming majority, perhaps too powerful, in the new House, with 32 seats out of the 36 in the expanded assembly. This in a sense parallels what happened at the recent British Columbia polls in the Social Credit sweep. It also repeats what has been seen elsewhere in Canada this year in the return of office-holders by an electorate either agreeable to present policies, or else too busy in their own affairs to bother which way elections might go.

In Newfoundland's case there are, perhaps, some special circumstances in addition. Premier Smallwood took an active part in the Maritimes case for more favorable treatment in federal fiscal and other settlements. He is an aggressive pleader, well-posted in maritime matters and rising as a spokesman for the Atlantic bloc of provinces. These factors also weighed in the result no doubt.

It would be a mistake, however, to argue from the uniform return of five provincial governments in general elections this year that the same course will eventuate next June when the federal poll may be called. Provincial references chiefly are decided on provincial issues, while voting in a Dominion-wide election ranges from regional to national and even external policies, and their results. Federally the Liberals have been a long time statically in power in relatively easy times, with very little sustained opposition. How they will meet any change in the economic weather, or a revival of stiff opposition under aggressive leadership, is something that only the future will show.

On the basis of results which he had predicted, Premier Smallwood is entitled to the credit of a victory which certainly was spurred by his own vigor and enthusiasm. Regardless of politics, it is nice to hear a man speak up in praise of his own province. Premier Smallwood has done that, and it is evident that he has succeeded in conveying something of his enthusiasm over Newfoundland to the electors themselves.

'Century Sam'

THE centennial committee has evolved a pictorial symbol for B.C.'s hundredth birthday in 1958, round which will be wrapped all centennial publicity. He is a cheerful-looking creature in work-a-day garb called "Century Sam." Whether this is the most apt trademark that could be devised is perhaps open to question; there is a rustic tinge to him scarcely compatible with this day and age. On the other hand he recalls and typifies the pioneer who opened up this great province and that repays a debt; all the wondrous modernity of today hinges on the sturdy work and sacrifice of the early explorers and settlers like Century Sam.

Sam is supposed to be a holdover from the gold rush of 1858 who crawled into the lee of a big rock and went to sleep, although not until he had disposed of an intruding rattler with one hefty bite. Like Rip Van Winkle he woke up again, just in time for 1958's big birthday party. This is a theme that will need handling with care lest outsiders get the idea that B.C.

has been dozing for the past century. Actually it is not Sam who is celebrating the centennial, but his descendants. However he is shown as of sprightly go-getting mien and the impact of his enthusiasm should not be lost on all who hear about him or glimpse his image.

Century Sam, in fact, is the rallying figure for everyone. By the time 1958 rolls round he will be a familiar friend, part of our folk lore and doubtless indelibly etched in our memory. What we have to do is accept him as an example and match his cheery spirit with the kind of determination his own vintage year of 1858 so well exemplified. It will take whole-hearted enthusiasm all over the province to make B.C.'s centennial party the success it deserves to be. If we get behind Sam as we ought to the occasion can be made so noteworthy as to leave behind it a permanent statue of "Century Sam" himself. Not a bad idea at that, either; he might even be unveiled as the first official event on the program.

Too Few Judges

SUPPORT of the legal profession and all connected with the British Columbia Court of Appeal no doubt will be thrown behind Chief Justice Sloan's advocacy of the appointment of an additional judge to the bench. Such an enlargement of the panel of senior judges would permit the court to function unimpeded when jurists are ill or absent. It would perhaps afford also some measure of rest for members of the highest court at times when the docket is heavy and the sittings prolonged and exhausting.

The temporarily incapacitating illness of Mr. Justice O'Halloran, allied to the chief justice's partial separation from the Appeal Court while acting as a royal commissioner for the provincial government, has seriously disrupted the disposition of the current calendar. The two-panel system established not long ago, whereby in effect two courts can sit simultaneously, has broken down already on that account, with vexatious but unavoidable disadvantages to all concerned.

The processes of law, particularly at the higher levels, are slow enough as it is. The work of the Appeal Court has increased out of all recognition in recent years, and interruption of the sittings may have a chain reaction. When substitutes are not available there is always the possibility, too, that a judge from a high sense of duty, sympathy for the anxiety of litigants and consideration for the convenience of counsel will take his place on the bench when in ill health. Increasing the composition of the court from the present seven judges, including the chief justice, to eight would afford a margin of leeway which all the circumstances would appear to warrant, and it is to be hoped that representations to Ottawa will be framed accordingly.

Interpreting the News

Kremlin Divided over Tito

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

President Tito of Yugoslavia seems to be in the driver's seat in his talks with Russian Communist leaders.

Just what is going on in the talks, now at the end of their second week, is still something of a mystery. But two things appear to be certain.

One is that the talks have nothing to do with relations between the Communist-ruled countries and the Western democracies. They concern Communist Party policies.

The other is that Tito, the one-time rebel against Stalin's dictatorship, is being consulted as an independent Communist leader fully equal with the highest men in the Kremlin.

It seems likely that Tito's prestige will be strengthened as the result of the talks.

Especially, his prestige is likely to be strengthened in the Communist satellite countries.

It is no secret that Tito hopes to make himself, some day, the leader of a Balkan bloc of Communist countries which would include Bulgaria and Albania. His independence, and his part in the present talks, are likely to increase his prestige in other Soviet satellite countries.

Apparently Tito himself was surprised—and not too pleased—when Nikita S. Khrushchev, the Russian Communist chief, decided to visit him.

Khrushchev arrived in Yugoslavia on Sept. 19, on what was called in Moscow a vacation. That obvious fiction was soon exposed.

Then it was suggested that the Suez Canal dispute and Tito's relations with the United States and other Allied countries caused the visit.

But it was soon made plain that Khrushchev wanted to talk to Tito about developments in the Communist countries.

It was disclosed that the Russian Communist Party of which Khrushchev is first secretary, had sent out a circular letter to Red leaders in the satellite countries criticizing Tito.

The complaint apparently was that Tito, because of his rebellion against Stalin, is no longer a truly orthodox Communist. The implication was that Communist leaders in the satellite countries must not follow his independent line.

Then came reports that there had been a split in the Kremlin over the attitude to be taken toward Tito—and toward the loosening up of Kremlin dictatorship in some of the satellite countries, notably Poland.

Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin were supposed to lead one faction, which favors good relations with Tito on a basis of equality and the loosening up of the grip on the satellites.

Former foreign minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, the chief survivor of the Kremlin's old Bolsheviks, was said to head the other faction, which doesn't like Tito and thinks Khrushchev has gone too far in his satellite policy.

In any event, Tito flew to Yalta, on the Russian Black Sea coast, with Khrushchev on Sept. 27 after eight days of conference in Yugoslavia.

Now Bulganin has joined the conference and Erno Gero, No. 1 Hungarian Communist, has been called in.

"Minister of Northern Affairs, eh? Are you, or have you ever been, a member of the Communist Party?"

By TOM TAYLOR

HUGH MacLennan has an interesting article in Saturday Night about prominent people and their ages. He is commenting on a recent study by a professor on Canadian political leaders and their venerability, the theme being that most of them are too old to be up-and-coming.

His remark is true, I suppose, that as men get older they grow disillusioned and thus less dynamic. In general that is; it doesn't do to be too wholesale in your judgment.

The trouble with roping ancient eras into the argument, however, is that it can be meaningless. We live in a much different world from, say that of Alexander the Great or William Pitt. Much, much more complex and difficult.

It's a small virtue, really, to say that Pitt was prime minister at 24 years of age, while our PMs are more apt to be three times that age. Remember there was no popular suffrage in Pitt's time; the people didn't elect him. Nor is any parliamentary democracy likely nowadays to choose a youth of 24 to run their country.

They just wouldn't believe he had the stuff in him, and with reason. Mr. MacLennan allows of course that men didn't live long in olden times, so that to be 30 was considered to be old. The great names of the past were often those of men literally in a hurry.

Even so, it's not necessarily a denigration of modern man to point out that Alexander conquered his known world by the time he was 30, that Napoleon made himself a dictator at the same age, or that Charles XII of Sweden crushed half-a-dozen other nations as a teen-ager.

If you are going to pick out celebrities like these you should at the same time recall the boyish kings and emperors of old who made a hotch of their countries' affairs. Lots of them too.

Pitt wasn't a genius at 24 because he was 24 but because he was Pitt. Among his own party there would be a score of colleagues his own age, but nitwits by comparison.

In the same way it wasn't their ages but their quality that lifted Alexander and Charles to historical heights. There was no one to say them nay, either; no peasant able to vote them out, and that's crucial to the discussion.

By the same token, of course, reversing the situation—it wasn't because he was 65 when he became prime minister that Churchill was a wonder. It was because he was the man he was.

Some oldish chaps were also tops long ago, come to that. Caesar ruled the roost in Rome when he died, and he was then 56. Michaelangelo was 67 when he began to build St. Peter's; he was still at the job when he died at 88.

You see; it's as easy to pick out nitwits one way as the other.

A remark, then, like Mr. MacLennan's to the effect that Wellington in the year of Waterloo, when he was 45, would be thought too old for a post of political responsibility in modern Canada—has no validity. In fact it's dead wrong for there's a member of the federal government right now, by name of Winters, who became a cabinet minister in 1945 when he was 38 years of age.

In the main it's what's in a man, not the number of birthdays he has had, that counts most.

The arteries tend to harden all right beyond middle age, but some brains are ossified in adolescence.

Reports from Ottawa

PRIME Minister St. Laurent held a press conference last Friday. He had met groups of reporters at White Sulphur Springs in March, when he conferred with Presidents Eisenhower and Ruiz, and at London in June when he conferred with Commonwealth prime ministers. But Friday's hour and five minutes was the first time he had set aside for news correspondents in his own country this year.

He looked fine, belying his going-on-75. His six weeks' vacation and his amazing recuperative powers had restored him to full vigor. He was natty in a new grey Irish tweed, grey shirt and tie. His tan contrasted pleasingly with his white hair and moustache.

He received the newsmen in his East Block office, which is adorned with a large oil of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and an enlarged photo of MacKenzie King. On his desk was a stack of five books: the Bible, the New Testament, the Rules of the House of Commons, and two editions of the Parliamentary Guide.

He opened the meeting at 4 p.m. in a jolly, expansive mood. Perhaps a few matters had arisen on which the gentlemen of the press would like to have his opinion—although he couldn't think of very much of a special nature.

Maybe his guests were interested in federal-provincial fiscal negotiations. Well, they're going on very well. He could also report that he wasn't worrying about the trade deficit. Nor the cost of living. Nor inflation. Nor foreign ownership of Canadian industry. Nor what he called the "squawking" of Arab countries over Canadian jet aircraft sales to Israel.

By 4:28 he hadn't even mentioned the Popov-Staples spy case—the main matter which the 30-odd reporters had come to hear about. It had been known for days that the air force was preparing a statement for him to make. Two high-ranking RCAP officers had visited him at noon.

Apprehensive lest the conference end before we could get into this fascinating subject, I brought it up. Had Mr. St. Laurent any comment to make?

It was then that the PM stopped enjoying the press conference. He objected hotly to McCarthyism charges in a Toronto Globe and Mail editorial. He objected to the way the papers had splashed the Popov story. And the same thing had happened, he said, about his phone call to George Drew.

He was away on this new subject. Drew—before most reporters realized what was happening. Jim Oastler of the Montreal Star pulled him gently but firmly back to Popov.

You've read how the PM then belittled the Popov incident, how he defended concealment of the Russian diplomat's expulsion from Canada last summer, how he derided Pat Walsh's charges that other Russians were implicated in the spy plot. Indeed, the PM seemed to blame Walsh and the newspapers more than Popov.

Popov had done "an improper thing," but "Mr. Pat Walsh likes publicity," and "A newspaper gets hold of a story and spreads it all over the front page."

Three reporters asked his opinion on different aspects of the Popov case. He lectured them for what he described as attempting to pry into his mind. He was responsible to the public for what he did, he said, but not for what he thought.

And on this harmonious note the press conference ended, with some reporters believing that while they hadn't learned very much about Russian spies, they had sensed a Liberal uneasiness over how the ball might bounce in the election as a result of the Popov affair.

The Packsack

Those Creaking Joints

By GREGORY CLARK

THE attention the medical and surgical men are paying in the heart, brain, liver, lungs and other gizzards seems to me to be misplaced. They should be concentrating on the joints. It is in the joints we go first.

This past summer I leaped lightly into my outboard skiff in a fashion I have practiced for 64 years. My heart is still good. My brain is as clear as ever. No liver spots dance before my eyes. My lungs suck deep and pure. But the way I landed in the skiff, it was a mercy nobody was looking. My joints—just failed to act. Not only my ankles, knees and hip bones, but that main swivel joint in the small of the back, which you might call the main joint, all collapsed; and, somewhat like a lot of old carpet, I sagged onto the bottom of the skiff, the larger part of me suspended over the gunwale. And when I commanded my joints to step lively to save us all from going overboard, they just refused. So over we went, slow and without fuss, brain, heart, liver, lungs, joints and all.

The reason I speak of what formerly were component parts of a whole as if they were separate an-ties is in accordance with the trend in modern medicine. We have specialists now who deal with only one organism in what used to be a single organism. We have heart specialists, brain specialists, lung specialists, and so on. It is hard for us laymen not to conceive that we are incorporated companies rather than individuals. And the older we get, the stronger grows that conception. In bygone days we spoke of "my heart," "my lungs," "my liver." Not any more. You meet a man on the street and say "how are you?" and he immediately refers to "the heart," "the lungs," "the liver," as if he were speaking of fellow employees.

"The old-ticker," says your friend, "has been acting up."

It is as if the ticker were disembodied.

That is precisely the way I feel medical men wake up to the fact that it is in the joints we go first. You can see it all around you. On the street, in the office, at home, when the traffic lights change. Everybody over 40 goes clunk. They way they get on the bus or tram. Everybody over 40 appears to be constructed of Meccano. Just watch anybody, even your loved ones over 40 going upstairs.

Joints, gentlemen, the joints. How do we prevent them assuming an air of privacy apart from us?

The New Cabinet

By PETER BRUTON

THE major reshuffle of the provincial cabinet last week gave a clear indication that, for the time being at least, for other lands-and-for-ests minister Robert E. Sommers has no hope of being reappointed to the executive.

Mr. Sommers is M.L.A. for Rossland-Trail and that may be about as far as he's going to rise in provincial politics in the next few years.

There's always a chance that he would again be appointed to cabinet if he is successful in his slander suit against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy. But by Premier Bennett's action last week it appears very doubtful.

And one thing was made certain—he will not again hold the portfolio of lands and forests.

This monumental task is now in the hands of youthful Ray Williston, member for Fort George, who since Mr. Sommers' resignation on the floor of the legislature last February has ably held down both the education and lands and forests portfolios.

It was an almost impossible task even for a man of Mr. Williston's calibre, but it should be noted that the success with which he applied himself to his added duties convinced the premier that he was well suited to be in charge of the province's largest dollar-earner.

Perhaps one of the most surprising moves during the shuffle was the appointment of former agriculture minister Kenneth Kiernan to head the mines department as a single portfolio.

There's no doubt that oil and gas will play a big part in B.C.'s future economy. And Westcoast Transmission's $153,000,000 natural gas pipeline is moving down from the Peace River country at a rapid pace.

Of course, Westcoast's president Frank McMahon came out with a surprising and unasked-for laudatory address to Social Credit when the premier moved through the Peace River country during the campaign.

The appointment of Mr. Kiernan, an extremely talented minister, to his new position could be the way the premier is thanking Mr. McMahon for his support. He has devoted one of his best ministers to the job of administering the department Mr. McMahon has to deal with.

Of the other appointments, both Agriculture Minister Ralph Chetwynd, who has moved from trade and industry, and Education Minister Leslie Peterson, one of the two new appointees, will have a tough row to hoe before they prove themselves in the eyes of the public.

Governments have fallen when the public has differed with the policies laid down concerning these two important departments.

Appointment of Mayor Earl Westwood to the cabinet was not surprising to political observers.

Defeated after easily leading on the first count in Nanaimo in the 1953 provincial election, Mayor Westwood made no doubt about it last month. During last session he was a frequent guest of the government, sitting on the floor of the legislature.

Vancouver Island now has two cabinet ministers, the other of course being Public Works Minister W. N. Chant of Victoria.

Total cabinet strength has now been brought up to 12, including Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who is also minister of finance. The cabinet will probably be further increased after the next session by one, perhaps two, new ministers.

One of these is almost certain to be Mrs. Buda Brown, the new Social Credit candidate who defeated Liberal leader Arthur Laing in Vancouver-Point Grey.

The premier is known to favor placing a woman in the cabinet.

Tailpiece: The PGE rock slide which halted the inaugural run of the government-owned railway late in August was mentioned in the London Sphere—a leading English illustrated magazine.

Under a picture of the slide, the Sphere had a line which read "A Landslide holds up the Inaugural Run on a Canadian Railway."

Included in the caption was this line: "Among the passengers were Mr. R. C. Bennett, the prime minister of Canada, a number of members of the Canadian cabinet, senior officials of various Canadian and U.S. railways and a party of journalists."

Hot Spot for Tye Winds Up Season

Alberni Inlet Yields Final Heavy Catch

Tye fishing on Alberni Inlet has just wound up with the annual main derby of the Port Alberni Tye Club. Eighty of the leading tye anglers, who had qualified in weekly competitions, weighed in 23 of the mighty spring salmon weighing a total of 749 pounds and averaging 32 pounds, two ounces each.

Luckiest anglers in the derby were Cliff and Annie Hegin and Paul Jones, who drove all night from Victoria to take part in the derby and managed to haul five of the big fellows weighing 43.3, 42.0, 30.15, 35.4 and 37.7. All were caught on Alaska plugs.

Daily Colonist King Fishermen contest records show that Alberni Inlet was the hot spot for Island tye. The Port Boathouse weighed in 106 tye, and Nahmint Lodge 14.

But Comox weighed in the biggest fish and holds the lead with a 55-pounder.

Campbell River seems to be losing ground as a tye centre. Only two tye were weighed in the King Fishermen contest there. However, this in part may be attributed to the fact the Colonist contest this year is only open to Island residents. Many fishermen at Campbell River are Americans.

In addition to the grand prize of a motorboat and a number of hidden-weight prizes which will be awarded at the end of the contest, grand winners in each of the four categories—front, coho, spring and tye—will receive handsome King Fishermen trophies and merchandise prizes.

The T. Eaton Co. is offering a three-horsepower Viking outboard motor for the biggest coho. W. R. Menzies & Co. Ltd. of Victoria is offering a Youngs-town food waste disposer for the biggest spring salmon.

For the biggest tye, Murdoch Girdard Ltd. Courtenay store, will give a $125 suit for man or woman.

A full tenting outfit will be given by Jeanne Bros. of Victoria Ltd. for the biggest trout entered. It will include a Jeanne brand nine-by-nine and eight-foot high palmetto top-quality tent, adjustable corner pole tent frame and two Dacron-filled Jeanne brand sleeping bags.

Recent weigh-ins:

Port Boathouse, Port Alberni
New record (will best season): William Mackenzie, 442 lb. (17.8 coho).
Cliff Davis, 312 lb. (17.8 coho).

Simplest Plant Life Provides the Answer

Within five years the dream of space travel will become a reality, says the head of "space medicine" at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine. This is the fourth article in the problems facing space flight.

By LOUIS ALEXANDER

North American Newspaper Alliance

HOUSTON, Tex.—With all of unoccupied space around him, the man on that first trip into outer space or to Mars won't be able to get rid of anything from on board his space ship.

Despite man's achievements with air-conditioning, automatic garbage disposal and changing uranium into everything but gold, manned flight into outer space has not yet taken place because for one thing the scientists and doctors didn't know for sure how the space flight would dispose of foul air.

That first manned flight into outer space will be made in a completely sealed space ship, Dr. Hubertus Strughold of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine points out.

Men will have pressure suits, complete with forced oxygen supply with them, but they'll be traveling inside the sealed ship.

But how to get rid of carbon dioxide in such a closed system? It doesn't take too long in a closed system, for carbon dioxide to replace air in the lungs and kill him.

Scientists felt they could get rid of carbon dioxide in the same fashion that the earth has been disposing of it for a billion and a half years.

On earth, man inhales air containing oxygen, and exhales—exhaling a much higher proportion of carbon dioxide than he inhales. The oxygen provides life, the carbon dioxide, in relatively large proportion, death.

But plant life—the trees, flowers and even the grass takes in carbon dioxide, and gives off oxygen. The process is called photosynthesis, and as long as sunlight reaches the earth the conversion, or synthesis, of carbon dioxide back into oxygen goes on through the green leaves of plant life.

In Texas the scientists studied some of the problems of space flight in a space cabin simulator, which provided, on Texas earth, some of the predicted conditions of space.

The most promising solution came from research at the University of Texas in Austin. Scientists studied plants and their effectiveness in photosynthesis of carbon dioxide.

Who Knows How Long?

Space travelers needed some method that would produce enough oxygen and convert enough carbon dioxide to keep them supplied indefinitely—for who knows how long a trip to Mars or a trip anywhere into space may last.

They needed a lightweight system, for every pound of equipment means more pounds of rocket propulsion to push it off the earth fast enough to keep it travelling through space.

And they needed a system that was as foolproof as nature itself.

At the University of Texas researchers found a promising answer to the problem in one of the simplest forms of plant life—plant algae.

"At the University of Texas," Dr. Strughold said, "the researchers have found that about 2.3 kilograms (five pounds) of a green algae are sufficient to supply the daily gas metabolism of one man."

Thus Dr. Strughold reports that about five pounds of simple plant life aboard the space ship—as it whirled toward the moon or Mars in the revolving light of the sun—would dispose of the carbon dioxide exhaled by one member of the crew in the sealed ship and convert it back to breathable proportions of oxygen.

Stock Market Men Feel Bottom Reached

Impressive Rallyes Reason for Optimism

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The stock markets have made such an impressive rally since the bottom was reached in the early part of the year that the possibility of a recovery is being discussed.

It is too early to say, because the rally is still in its infancy, but the fact that the market has reached a bottom is a good sign.

The stock market has been in a state of panic since the early part of the year, but now it is beginning to show signs of recovery.

area served by the Greater Victoria Water Board were given until Oct. 15 yesterday to make submissions to the Public Utilities Commission against it.

The commission heard representatives from the board and from spokesmen for Sooke, View Royal, Langford and Colwood water customers, and finally gave the opponents of the increase the extra time to study the water board's brief, obtain more information, and make further submissions.

The consumers' spokesmen got together after the PUC hearing and decided to meet Friday at 8:30 p.m. in View Royal Community Hall to discuss their next action—possibly a unified submission—and to obtain information from water board officials who will be present.

The rate increase, if approved by the PUC, is scheduled to go into effect Nov. 1. Water commissioners and consumers

Double Vote Suspected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retiring officer James W. Wardrop of Vancouver-Burrard riding alleged Wednesday that one person voted twice in the provincial election.

He said he was satisfied the case is a "clear-cut" offence under the 1953 Elections Act but has not decided how to proceed.

Mr. Wardrop said the voter applied for an absentee ballot and signed an affidavit with his full name, then secured a second from the same returning officer, signing only initials.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

NEW YORK—As a newspaperman in Brooklyn and Manhattan, Tommy Holmes has lived and languished and suffered with the Dodgers for something like 30 years, give or take any edge he wants to claim on the calendar. He is a quiet martyr, a gent who would not let his own feelings intrude upon his pressbox neighbors, but in a race such as the National League has just completed you can hear the ulcers gnawing and you

So now the race was done and the Dodgers had won. Tommy permitted himself one deep sigh.

"There is nothing wrong with me," he said, "that a nice, long, dreary, miserable summer in the 'second division' wouldn't cure."

In the grip of current excitement, we always tend to forget the past. It is necessary, to remind ourselves that there have been closer races than the ones Brooklyn captured by the margin of one game. Twice there was no margin at all at the finish, and the races had to go on after the season's end. "I wish the 'ol stop talking about play-offs," Ralph Branca said wistfully. "The Dodgers have been beaten in four play-off games and I lost three of 'em."

The thing about this struggle, though, was the interminable quality of the torture. It was a three-day race until the last 24 hours, and not once from the day the season opened did any team have a lead—that looked like standing up. Not once, that is, until 4:30 p.m., Sunday.

Nonchalant Non-Winners

As it should be over the derby distance of 154 games, the race was won by the team that deserved to win. With five rival teams and perhaps 90 per cent of the nation's fans rooting for them, the Braves did not deserve to win.

The prize was hung up for them to take. They had a lead of one game with three games to play. They lost the first two. Pretenders who do it that way do not deserve the crown.

"But look at the way they lost those games," a fan protested. "They came back to tie one up and lost it, 5 to 4, and went 12 innings before dropping the other, 2 to 1."

All the more reason to say they didn't deserve the pennant. When a team gets clobbered, 10 to 0, there's nothing to do but forget it. All teams experience such days when they can't hit the enemy pitcher and can't hold the enemy batters and never are "in the game," as they say in the trade.

When the ball game is there to be won, you're supposed to win it. "Nonchalant" was Fred Haney's word for his players. Nonchalant non-champions.

A Gal Named Flossy

Beaten in four of their last six games, the Dodgers went into the final three-game series knowing they had to sweep it. They did. They earned what they got.

It is denying the Dodgers no share of the credit they earned to suggest that perhaps their most valuable player in the final week was not Sal Maglie, the no-hit pitcher, or Duke Snider or Sandy Amoros or Jackie Robinson or Pee Wee Reese, but a gal named Hurricane Flossy.

Maglie had pitched his no-hitter on Tuesday night and would not have worked Friday evening. When Flossy blew that game into the next afternoon Brooklyn got a stay of execution. Walter Alston was able to pitch Maglie and Clem Labine Saturday and win with both.

Sometimes the ball bounces your way in sports. It will always be felt here, for example, that the Giants of 1955 might have won the world championship if rain hadn't interrupted that series when they had the Yankees on the hip. The respite enabled Casey Stengel to come back with Allie Reynolds and the Chief led the rescue party.

Architect of Character

They were saying around Ebbets Field that if the Dodgers blew this one they couldn't revive the old cry, "Wait until next year," because for some of them there wouldn't be any next year. Maybe so, but it is reasonably certain now that the aging likes of Robinson, Campanella, Reese and Furillo will at least try to play next year. In that connection, there is a point worth noting.

Robinson joined the Dodgers in 1947. That year Brooklyn ended the Cardinals' 20th year span of supremacy in the National League. St. Louis hasn't won since. In every one of Robinson's 10 seasons, the Dodgers have won the pennant or led into September. Considering that he served under four managers and gave the same service to them all, he need not apologize for viewing the record with pride.

So New York gets its 15-cent series and Milwaukee settles for the Eastern Star convention. There is a school of thought which holds that adversity builds character. If it could just build a couple of hotels out there, life would be simpler.

Esquimalt Meets Punjab Saturday

Esquimalt and Punjab United at Central Park, Butler Brothers of the Victoria and District Foot and Hockey League, the other two teams ball League square off at Royal involved in the deadlock, will also Athletic Park at 2:30 Saturday afternoon as play begins in the annual knockout soccer competition for the McGavin Cup.

Officials of the VDFL have scheduled games in the cup competition for every Saturday afternoon until a winner is declared and until that time all league games will be played on Sundays. Three matches are scheduled for Sunday, Gorge Hotel and Bessie's Bakery, both part of a four-way tie for first place, clash.

Sooners Hold Top Position In Grid Voting

NEW YORK (AP)—With a string of 31 straight victories behind them and the end hardly in sight, Oklahoma's Sooners still are the No. 1 college football team in the United States.

Sports writers and broadcasters affirmed this rating by voting Oklahoma into the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press ranking poll for the second week of the 1956 season. The Sooners also were the pre-season choice for top ranking. After whipping North Carolina 28-0 in the season opener, Oklahoma polled a total of 883 points on the basis of 10 for each first place vote, nine for second.

Michigan State returned to its pre-season second rating on the strength of a 21-7 victory over Stanford. Then came a 6-0 Tech. Tech won two games, coming through a 9-7 squeaker against Southern Methodist last Saturday.

HOCKEY STAR DIES

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que., (CP)—Fred Bechard, 20, considered one of the greatest hockey players ever produced in the Trois-Rivieres area, died Tuesday. Bechard, a stocky defenseman, was noted for his rink-long rushes and his dexterous stick handling.

British Boxer Awarded Win Over Charles

LONDON, Eng. (AP)—Dick Richardson, Britain's 22-year-old heavyweight hope, scored a disputed victory over Edward Charles Tuesday night when the former world champion was disqualified in the second round for "persistent holding."

A packed house of 11,000 fans in Harringay Arena set up waves of cheering and derisive laughter which lasted for five minutes after referee Frank Wilson lifted Richardson's hands in victory. Charles, once a sleek and fast 182-pound champion, appeared hazy-eyed and a flabby 202 in defeat. Richardson weighed 203½.

Collier Defends Title In Annual Hill Climb

Victoria Motorcycle Club will hold its annual hill climb Monday afternoon at Mount Douglas Park, with about 25 of the top riders in the city expected to compete.

Events scheduled include the 21, 45 and 80-cubic-inch novice races, and the 80-cubic-inch open event for the F. W. Francis Trophy and the Vancouver Island championship. Club members will also play for the Paul Girardin Trophy for the VMC champion. Rated as the chief threat for Island honors is John Collier, last year's champion and present record-holder for the event, who will be riding his new BSA Golden Flash. The two top competitors for Collier are expected to be Wes Mohart, runner-up last year, and his factory-modified BSA Gold Star, and Red Shanks with his Harley-Davidson KR7T. Other riders entered in the climb include Vern Amor, Ernie Hills, Henry Lee, Don Hyde, Al Lewis, Tom Richardson, Dave Moore, Brian Armstrong, Ken Wilkins, Al Barclay and Terry Mesher. Starting time is 1:30 p.m.

Host of Industries Reap Harvest From Recreational Sports Boom

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UPI)—Boating, hunting and fishing have boomed into billion-dollar businesses during the post-war period.

Some 30,000,000 Americans now enjoy these three pastimes. They spent out almost $1,000,000,000 for these sports, putting them in the "big business" category.

A host of supplying industries reap the harvest from the public's growing interest. Even federal and state governments are enriching their coffers through excise taxes and licenses.

DRAMATIC GROWTH

The dramatic growth of these sports mirrors the changes that have taken place within the American economy since the end of the Second World War.

For one thing, Americans have more money to play around with now than ever before in history. Employment is at record levels. So are family incomes.

Another factor is the big increase in the amount of leisure time each American has to enjoy such pastimes.

The present-day leisure market has been described as "a growing like-Topsy child of the booming U.S. economy."

LARGEST CHUNKS

The interior department recently announced the results of a survey on hunting and fishing. It showed that some 25,000,000 Americans now spend almost $1,000,000,000 to hunt and fish. Fresh water fishing and small game hunting account for the biggest chunks of this over-all expenditure.

In addition, the national association of engine and boat manufacturers estimates that another 25,000,000 persons take part in recreational boating on lakes, rivers and oceans.

The association said they spend a billion dollars a year for new and used boats, accessories, insurance, docking facilities, maintenance and other items.

BIG FACTOR

Transportation plays a big factor in these three sports.

Fishermen and hunters travel millions of miles a year to get to their quarry. Boaters, on the other hand, are taking to the "sea" because of the big jam-up on the nation's highways.

The Outboard Boating Club of America estimates that about 80 per cent of all the boats used for recreational purposes are powered by outboard motors.

There are about 5,500,000 recreational boats in use, or about one for every 25 Americans. They chug across lakes, rivers and oceans in an endless procession.

First thing anybody knew, he was winding his way through one opponent after another.

Peter Sarason, the National Boxing Association featherweight champion, was matched with him for the title. It took several rounds with Armstrong and back, and by fighting for life against kids much bigger than he.

Tatters to Silk to Tatters

Former Triple Ring Champion Now Fighting to Help Others

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Henry Armstrong, in his career, ran the gamut from tatters to silk and back to tatters. Today he is happily engaged in working for God.

"The plucky little guy with the massive shoulders is the only box-fighter who ever held three world-titles at the same time."

Armstrong tells about his misery and triumphs in an autobiography he called "Gloves, Glory and God."

His mother was a full-blooded Iroquois Indian. His daddy was a mixture of Irish, Irish and Negro—a Mississippi sharecropper, "one of the millions once driven mercilessly by the cruel and jealous despot, King Cotton."

BACK ALLEY BRAWLS

The brown-skinned Henry was small. So it was natural that if he hankered to survive in "back alley brawls," he had to learn to take care of himself.

Big boys pick on little boys, winding up, cleaning Petty's a spell of living high on the pork. With a "crown" but very little money, he started to look a little better. His next chance came in a title bout with tough Barney Ross, then holder of the welterweight crown. It was the first time a featherweight was allowed to challenge the welterweight champ.

and back, and by fighting for life against kids much bigger than he.

He had a few amateur fights and finally with his first hand, decided to hobo to the west coast. There came a few club fights, but it was a long time before Henry could afford to live on much more than peanuts. Then, all of a sudden he began to click.

First thing anybody knew, he was winding his way through one opponent after another.

Brenda Fisher Aims at Strait

It may be early for signs of the Juan de Fuca Strait swimmer crop, but England's Brenda Fisher is already making plans for a harvest.

BRENDA FISHER

First off, she wants a sponsor. She has her eye on the Jaycees' strait swim jackpot next summer. No matter what the competition she stands a better than good chance of taking the top money in the event.

BEAT RECORD

Brenda is the Grimsby girl who beat Marilyn Bell's time across Lake Ontario by better than two hours when she conquered the lake in a stormy crossing last summer. And she was fourth in a mixed field of 37 which swam the Nile last April. She holds the women's record for the English Channel, too.

BOTH WAYS

Don Gray, another Grimsby native living in Victoria, had a letter from Brenda the other day telling him of her plans to swim Juan de Fuca—both ways. First she'd like to take Marilyn Bell's course, and beat her time, and then make the southward crossing.

She would enter the Jaycees' swim to compete for a cash prize she hopes may be boosted to $3,000.

$100 Experience

A young immigrant who thought he'd get in some driving experience paid $100 in city police court today for taking a car without the owner's consent.

Vincent E. Leighton, 25, 3579 Quadra, who came to Canada last June from England and whose wife will be arriving here in a week, was working as a night attendant for Coronation Motors, 2978 Douglas, defence counsel James Proudfoot said.

He locked up and took for a drive a car that had been left by a customer for service.

Leighton had failed a driving test and thought that night that "it was a good time to take some driving experience."

Donald Leary Kelly, Queen's Own Rifles, was fined $35 for careless driving Sept. 23 and $25 for not having a motor vehicle insurance card.

Robert George Hough, Gordon Head army camp, paid $10 for having no muffler on his car. Keith E. Banfield, 1143 Dominion Road, paid $10 for blowing his horn unnecessarily.

Anacortes Route Traffic Doubles

Visitors to Vancouver Island using the Sidney-Anacortes route have doubled in the past six years, according to figures given by C. E. Blaney, local representative of Washington State Ferries.

Last summer's increase was the biggest on record, reflecting the popularity of this short, scenic route between the U.S. and Vancouver Island.

Mr. Blaney gave these figures to members of the harbor development group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Park Addition Provides Boon For Campers

B.C. Forest Service will begin work shortly on camping facilities in a three-acre addition to popular McDonald Provincial Park, two miles north of the Patricia Bay Airport.

Provincial cabinet has authorized the forest service to buy the addition from Mrs. Muriel McDonald, who gave the original five-acre property as a park two years ago in memory of her husband, Alex.

Mr. McDonald, who died about a decade ago, was a long-time and well-known resident of the Sidney area.

Forest service officials said that during the first full year of operation of the park this year, it was found that "there was a terrific over-use, especially by people coming off the ferry from Anacortes."

Many of the tourists, they said, had "moved over" into the area which now will be added to the park.

Net operating income of Canadian National Railways for the first eight months of 1956 are up $9,702,000 from the corresponding period of 1955.

The railway reports that its net income for the period was $35,203,000 against $25,501,000 a year ago. In August the net revenue was $8,001,000 compared with $4,827,000 in August, 1955.

'He'll Peter Out'

Presley 'Sex Force' Derided by Dean

By MARGARET McMANUS
BALTIMORE, Md. (NANAI)
Dr. William Shaffer, professor of psychology at Johns Hopkins University, and dean of all the schools on the Homewood campus here, sat in his quiet, book-lined office and discussed the strange case of Elvis Presley.

It was a scene remote from the posturing and gesticulations of Elvis Presley, himself, at 21, the age of most college seniors. The sounds of rock 'n' roll were not thundering over the academic campus, but Dean Shaffer was well aware of Presley and the commotion currently surrounding him.

"I do not pretend to have made any serious study of this young man," he said, "but I have seen him on television and I have listened to a great deal of chatter about him."

"It is my opinion that he is simply one more in a series of performers who incite this kind of hysterical mob reaction, but I don't really think he is a serious menace to young people."

Before him there was that Johnny Ray, who cried and sang at the same time. And as I recall, when Frank Sinatra was in the swooning teenagers stage, there was much criticism about him. I believe he was considered offensive because he often seemed to be caressing the microphone while he sang.

"Probably most of the concern in adult minds about the danger of Elvis Presley revolves about the sexual force involved, whether or not this so-called hip-wiggling and grinning of the mouth is too suggestive for young consumption."

"I honestly don't believe the kids are much concerned about this aspect of Presley. He is a major factor in this moment."

"In each case, one or two leaders whip up the frenzy and keep it at a high pitch and the others follow, for no more significant reason than to be part of the crowd."

Dean Shaffer said he was afraid that the people who opposed Presley the most vigorously probably contributed the most to prolonging his popularity by centering such exaggerated attention upon him.

"It is in the bone of youth to take a stand opposite their elders and the more the mothers' clubs and the civic groups protest, the more publicity he will get."

A calm, dispassionate man, with a slow, charming smile and an air of maturity and wisdom, Dr. Shaffer has been a college professor for 38 years, has been a confidante and friend of young people for almost three decades.

"I think if this young man has anything to contribute to the world of music and entertainment, he may also have the intelligence to subdue what is obviously offensive to so many people," he said. "If he has nothing lasting to contribute, I'm sure he will peter out more quickly if he is ignored."

Body Found In Fire

An elderly man was burned to death yesterday morning when fire destroyed his small home at Saltair, between Duncan and Ladysmith.

Neighbors found the body of Francis A. B. Porter, 82, in the smoldering ruins of the frame structure.

Ladysmith RCMP said the blaze broke out sometime between 7 and 9 a.m.

FOUND BODY

Charles Buckley, one of the dead man's neighbors, saw the smoke and found the house burned to the ground, with Porter's body buried in the ashes.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death at an inquest held at Ladysmith yesterday afternoon.

Parking Scheme Thrives

DUNCAN — The free downtown parking lot here, operated by the Chamber of Commerce retail division, is a thriving success, but some merchants are delinquent in contributions to the scheme.

This was the report given at a meeting of the division yesterday.

An attendant will be on hand at the weekend to count cars using the 100-car lot.

Norman Gourley said there is still work to be done on the lot, including grading and possibly extension.

The group will urge the city to install a decorative street lighting system when new lamp standards are erected in the downtown area.

School Books Flayed

NANAIMO (CP) — A parent-teacher council meeting here Tuesday night criticized textbooks, work books and supplementary reading books in elementary schools.

Harewood Parent-Teachers' Association said such books should be judged on basis of thought content, grammar and good English.

One fault mentioned was use of "feel bad" as a synonym in the sentence "he did not mind when Kristin took the raisins."

A resolution saying faulty books should be withdrawn or revised will be sent to the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation.

Navy Tug Refloats Herself

NANAIMO (CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy tug Clifton refloated herself on the high tide Wednesday after grounding on the sand at Gabriola Pass near Nanaimo.

The tug Island Dispatcher was sent to assist in freeing the Clifton but was not needed.

Boom in Sight At Cobble Hill

DUNCAN — Cobble Hill, where business has dropped sharply from the thriving level of 20 years ago, may be due for a comeback.

A representative of a large west-coast plant said this week his company is considering opening a feed store in the community, which is still home to half a dozen big poultry breeders.

George E. Bonner, well-known Cobble Hill merchant, said yesterday that construction of the new South Cowichan Junior-Senior High School in the Cobble Hill district should help reopen the area and bring back both residents and businesses. The school is scheduled to open early in 1975.

Impaired Driver Takes the Pledge

NANAIMO — Wesley Brett Trimble-pledged in police court yesterday, before he was fined $150 for impaired driving, that he wouldn't drink again.

Trimble was involved in a minor accident on Commercial Street Tuesday night when he backed into another vehicle.

He told the court he had been driving since 1937 and had a conviction-free record.
